UNDERPRIVILEGED BOY IS PROBLEM FOR MEN--MILLER

Pastor Tells Kiwanis Club Personal Touch Will Aid Greatly.

HOLWICK ADVISES AID TO INDUSTRY

Flick Urges Kiwanians To Attend Meetings Of City Council.

Some of the things that can be accomplished with regard to civic welfare, industry, the underprivileged child and social activities were exemplified Monday noon by the Salem Kiwanis club at their weekly luncheon meeting at the Elks club.

J. M. Veach was chairman of the meeting and introduced as speakers for the day, Rev. H. L. Miller, D. L. Flick, Paul Holwick and R. B. Finley. "The underprivileged boy such as we have in America is to my mind not a boy who is necessarily rich or poor, but a boy whose mind is crippled, one whose playgrounds are the streets and alleys of the city, one who has never enjoyed the advantages of recreational life in the country," declared Rev. Miller in speaking on "What Kiwanis can do to aid the underprivileged boy."

Personal Touch Counts "Just what we can do I do not know, nor do I think anyone else does. It is some thing for us to study and think seriously about. The man life of the community and the personal touch has a lot to do with this problem. We must employ these boys, give them good, wholesome work, give him that brotherly advice and the personal oversight just as if he were a son. The personal work and personal interest is what counts," said the speaker.

Improvement of transportation service in Salem; help for the housing situation and getting behind the water question were the three things Kiwanis should do with regard to helping industry here, according to Paul Holwick who spoke on "What Kiwanis Can Do to Aid Industry." "We must get behind the period of prosperity but not overdoing prosperity and thus keep away from a period of deflation," said Holwick.

Urging that members of the club attend council meetings and declaring that what council needs is real hard, honest-to-goodness thinking and consideration on the part of business and professional men, B. L. Flick, president of Salem city council, declared that the business and professional men should take more interest in their city than they do. He spoke on "What Kiwanis Can Do to Aid City Council."

Give Thought To Council "How many of you men here would go into council as a purely civic proposition? What we need is people that will give these things consideration. If you think you have officials in your city who do not do their duty, you must remember the people elected them, you voted for them or else you were indifferent to the needs of your city," declared Flick.

Plans for the organization of a stunt team to care for stunts at inter-city meetings with other Kiwanis clubs, were told of by R. B. Finley who spoke on "What Kiwanis Should do About a Stunt Team."

"A Kiwanian club that can produce real live stunts when they meet with other clubs will show that their club is really a live wire along promotion of social lines," declared Finley.

OFFICERS TO HUNT FOR HEAVY LOADS

County Buys Equipment To Weigh Trucks; Aimed At Overloading.

The truck driver who overloads his truck and attempts to use the improved roads and streets of the county and its cities better have a cure as the county commissioners Monday afternoon voted to buy equipment for the weighing of trucks so that violations could be detected.

This machine resembles a lifting jack and will be placed under an axle of a truck and the weight computed by the strain necessary to lift the truck wheel from the roadway.

The machine will be put in the hands of Sheriff Lewis who will appoint a deputy to take charge of it and patrol the county looking for overloads. A stiff penalty is attached to all violations of this law.

The commissioners issued orders for the lighting of the grounds surrounding the court house to coincide with the plans of the Lisbon Kiwanis for the business district of Lisbon.

Temperature Drop Of Fifty Degrees Record In 2 Days

A temperature of eight degrees above zero was reported in Lisbon at 5:30 o'clock this morning. The cold weather caused frozen water pipes and garages were busy thawing out radiators on cars that had been unprotected.

Old inhabitants think that last night's temperature is a record breaker for this vicinity. Sunday's balmy breeze brought a temperature of more than 60 degrees.

COMMITTEE ASKED TO PROBE ALLEGED BRIBERY IN SENATE

Resolutions Offered To Begin Investigation Of Charges.

Columbus, March 20.—Divergent views on the method of conducting the probe into an alleged bribery in the senate will be fought out before the senate rules committee today, following the introduction late yesterday of two resolutions providing for an investigation.

One resolution, sponsored by Sen. George H. Bender, Cleveland, asked for the appointment of a committee of five members, not more than three of whom should be members of one political party, by Lieut.-Gov. Bloom to conduct the probe. The second, offered by Sen. Chapplear, Pickaway county, named three senators, two Republicans and one Democrat for this work.

Expect Fight On Floor "Which ever proposition meets the approval of the senate rules committee, it is considered certain that a fight on the floor of the senate will follow. The belief was general here this morning that the Republican majority would line up behind the Chapplear proposal.

The investigation is the outcome of rumors, current here for a week or more, that senate bill 162, reducing liability of inn keepers, had been used as a "milkier." Names of two Cleveland senators were linked with charges of alleged bribery.

The house codes committee today announced that another hearing will be held tomorrow on the Rhode bill, providing for repeal of the present building code and substituting a commission of seven members to draft building standards.

Opposition of auto clubs forced the recommitment of the Price bill, transferring registration of automobiles to the tax commission and county auditors. This work is done by a bureau of the secretary of state's department.

M'KEEFREY PLANT READY TO OPERATE

Leetonia, March 20.—It is reported that a large number of workmen began work at the McKeefrey furnace Monday to get everything in order for starting or blowing in the furnace some time during this week.

This is good news for the men who have out of work since the furnace shut down about two or more years ago.

Leetonia industries are growing more active and the prospects for labor is brighter. Already the housing proposition is facing the people as there is scarcely a house to be bought or rented anywhere in town. There is some talk of building several houses.

Police Attracted By Dog's Barking, Find Master Dead

Toledo, March 20.—Although the barking of a faithful Airedale dog early today proved unavailing in saving the life of Frank Obermyer, watchman for the Milling steer safe company, who was asphyxiated by gas fumes from a defective oil burner, his barking and leaping attracted police to the plant where the dog led them to his master.

He was dead.

CHIEF THOMPSON AWAITS ACTION ON DONAHEY'S ORDER

Police Head Will Make No Move Until He Is Suspended Or Cleared.

POST TO SECURE LEGAL CONSEL

Legality Of Suspension Of Chief Without Charge Is Questioned.

Suspension of Chief of Police T. W. Thompson as ordered by Gov. Vic Donahey, now rests solely with Mayor John W. Post.

No new developments were reported in the matter Tuesday, any future action being dependent upon the action taken by the mayor. What action will be taken by the city's chief executive has not yet been determined.

No action is planned by the police head until he has either been suspended or cleared of the order issued by Gov. Donahey. No charges have been filed against him with Mayor Post nor has there been any charge filed against Chief Thompson by the mayor.

The mayor reiterated his stand in the matter Tuesday, in that he had no charges to file against the chief nor had he heard of any charges to be filed by anyone else.

Mayor Post declared Monday that Chief Thompson had always obeyed every order issued to him from the mayor and that he had always admitted himself as an officer in the best possible manner and that he had no charges of any kind to make with regard to the chief.

The legality of attempting to suspend Chief Thompson without preferring charges against him has been questioned. The law provides that an officer may be suspended only after charges have been filed against him, and his suspension holds only until he can be granted a hearing before the civil service commission of the city.

As the matter stands today, Mayor Post has a written order signed by Gov. Donahey demanding the removal of Chief Thompson within 30 days and the mayor has no charges to prefer against him to authorize his suspension.

It was understood at city hall Tuesday that proper legal advice on the matter would be secured before any definite action is taken one way or the other.

Confidence Men Depart, Victim Is $50,000 Poorer

Liquor Offer Used As Bait, And Man Awakens 18 Hours Later.

Cincinnati, March 20.—Using the prospective sale of 200 cases of bonded whisky as bait, a gang of Cincinnati confidence men took a wealthy Pennsylvanian through a swindle that left him $50,000 poorer with not even worthless stock certificates for souvenirs, police learned last night.

A sample of the liquor, laden with a sleeping potion, figured in the deal, in which the victim was said to have been William B. Jones, of Westmoreland county, Pa. Jones awoke yesterday after an 18-hour nap superinduced by the narcotic.

According to police and private detectives at work on the case, the liquor offer led to talk of stock manipulations promising huge profits. A bottle of a familiar brand of Kentucky liquor, brought out to celebrate the "most completed bargain," was the last thing Jones recalled. But when he awoke, he told police, he had been robbed of twenty $1,000 bills and three $10,000 bills.

ARMY AIR SERVICE PLANS FOR FLIGHT ALL AROUND WORLD

Officials Convinced That Proposed Journey Is Feasible.

Washington, March 20.—An around the world airplane flight is now under consideration by the army air service. It was learned officially today. Studies of possible routes already have been made and though still incomplete, these investigations have progressed far enough to convince officials the proposed flight is entirely feasible. The army air service also has at least one "ship" which veteran pilots believe is capable of making the flight.

The main route for the flight already has been determined upon, and for certain lapses of the prospective trip, alternative routes have been selected. A solution has been found, officials believe, for the problem of the Pacific, hitherto regarded as presenting insurmountable difficulties in the present stage of aircraft development.

No attempt would be made to fly directly across the Pacific, officials say, but the plane would cross to Siberia from the Aleutian islands, off the coast of Alaska.

Start At Washington Starting at Bolling field, the proposed route passes through the national capital to Detroit, thence across a portion of Canada to Alaska and the Aleutian islands. A comparative short flight across the Bering sea would bring the plane to Kamchatka and another of about the same duration across the sea of Okhotsk would bring it to Vladivostok.

From the Siberian capital, the route lies along the China coast to Singapore, across the Bay of Bengal and the Dekhan of India to Bombay. From Bombay the route would follow the course already laid out by British (Continued on sixth page.)

Tut Rules Spring Fashions Displayed In Salem Stores

The discovery of the tomb of King Tut has set the style for milady's wear in Salem, a survey of the spring fashions displayed in Salem stores shows.

With the discovery of Tut's tomb, everything that is in any way Egyptian has been brought to this country for milady's spring wear.

The new spring gowns are made in Egyptian style and the materials are of a design that were in vogue more than 3,000 years ago. The millinery shops are also showing the Egyptian turban to good advantage and where jewelry is on display, this too savors of the Egyptian. Shoe merchants declare that sandals in all colors will be worn this spring and summer.

The predominating shades for spring seem to be grey, tan and Nile green, while purple and lavender are also shown.

With the exception of the strictly tailored garment, the gowns, coats and suits will all have loose lines. The principal spring wrap will be a cape and the majority of the early

FOURTEEN INJURED AS ELEVATOR DROPS

Employees In Pittsburg Plant Have Narrow Escape From Death.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 20.—Fourteen persons, six girls and eight men, were injured, some seriously when an elevator in the building of Murdoch, Kerr & Co., dropped shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. They were rushed to hospitals. They were employed in the big printing establishment.

Reports received at police headquarters said most of the victims were suffering severely from shock. A few were believed to have received internal injuries.

Just as the elevator was about to stop at the second floor, it suddenly dropped to the basement. There was confusion about the elevator. Police from headquarters nearby hurriedly began extricating the passengers and rushing them to hospitals.

At the Allegheny General hospital it was said first examinations did not reveal any seriously injured.

MAYOR DECLARES DONAHEY'S ORDER MUST BE OBEYED

Calls Meeting To Explain What Is Expected Of Every Officer.

EVERY MAN READY FOR CO-OPERATION

Repeats Orders Given When He Took Office, Post Informs Men.

"Enforce the law to the letter. Arrest every violator of any law; regardless of who it is, get them. The law must be enforced and you are expected to enforce it; then you will be doing your duty."

The speaker was Mayor John W. Post and his audience included every member of the police and fire departments and a representative of The News who was invited to attend the meeting.

Mayor Post called the meeting to explain to the city officers just what would be expected of them in the future if they expected to retain their positions on the force.

The mayor told of his trip to Columbus for his audience with Gov. Donahey, and of the criticisms hurled at the police department and his administration by the state officials. That the fire department was an efficient working organization and no criticisms were directed at their work, was the declaration of Gov. Donahey, said Mayor Post in his talk.

"Every law must be enforced and I am expecting every man here to enforce these laws regardless of who the violator may be. I was told what was expected of me and I am just passing this information along to you," said the mayor.

Every Violator Must Go

The mayor instructed the officers along the lines of their duty in connection with raids and declared that every bootlegger, every gambler and every violator of any kind must go. "They will not be tolerated in Salem," declared the executive.

"I have never given you any other orders than I am giving you tonight, they are just the same orders I gave you when I took office and they are the same I have always given you, but I am just repeating them again in order that you may all understand just what is expected of you."

"We have these laws to enforce and we are going to enforce them regardless of whom it hits. We are going to get every one of them," said Post.

Urging them to continue their operations against bootleggers and to carry this campaign through to a successful conclusion, the mayor told the officers that not just bootlegging but every possible violation must be stopped.

The men expressed their hearty desire for co-operation with the mayor in enforcing the law at the close of the meeting pledged themselves to rid the city of every violator.

The Governor's Orders

GOV. DONAHUE'S action in the case brought by the citizens' committee came as a distinct surprise to officials and citizens alike and more or less of an overwhelming shock to members of that committee. The News attempted a few weeks ago to sound a warning note to those who had expected the removal of the mayor, but in circles where the wish was father to the thought the prophecy was given as much heed as most weather forecasts. Consequently some of those who have been active in law enforcement were not prepared for the governor's action.

The only mystery about the order issued to the mayor to remove Chief

Thompson within 30 days is why the governor wants the chief removed in the absence of any charges, directly or indirectly, against him. In all the controversy over law enforcement the chief's name has never been mentioned, the mayor has never received any complaints or charges and the citizens committee members admit that they did not file charges against him and do not now have any charges which would be the basis for his removal.

It is evident that Chief Thompson has been made the goat, as he has expressed it. But it is also apparent that he can clear himself without much effort. Mayor Post has but one thing to do and he has announced his intention of doing that. The case will then go before the civil service commission without anyone to prosecute charges against the chief. Reinstatement is the next logical step and the entire case will be ended at where it started, except that the chief must bear the brunt of defending himself against unknown charges.

And if the civil service commission does not find cause for the chief's removal, the mayor cannot be expected to answer to the governor for he will already have done all that was asked of him.

It is not clear whether this is the governor's way of cleverly sidestepping the issue in Salem, but it is becoming apparent that in the end no action will be taken. And it is just as well that no action be taken under pressure now. Law enforcement is not the vital issue in Salem today that it was four months ago. Liquor law violators are not operating on the same large scale nor as openly as they did last summer, police officers have been showing results, considering their strength in numbers, and the mayor is showing a tendency to cooperate with them in their efforts.

Naturally, the flow of liquor in Salem has not been stopped and there is little hope that it can be entirely shut off, but it has been materially check-ed and the city has again settled back in its normal methods of handling affairs, with the duty authorized officers more alert than ever. On the face of it, the governor's order will not alter things greatly, but his words of advice, given in the nature of a warning, may have a wholesome moral effect.

Fool's Gold

THERE is a growing tendency, upon the part of many of us, to "fall" for every new-fangled thing that comes along, whether we have thoroughly investigated it before taking our dose, or not.In the mining districts of the west there is sometimes found a mineral substance called "Fool's Gold" from the fact that it resembles the genuine mineral in many respects, and because inexperienced prospectors frequently mistake it for the precious metal.But we do not have to go to the mining sections of the country to find an abundance of another kind of fool's gold. We as prospectors find it again our quest for the good, the pure and the real in all things. And in our eagerness to acquire these things imitations frequently present themselves and deceive us for the time.The false prophet with an equally false doctrine, the propagandist who has a panacea for our social and industrial evils, and the fellow who fosters the wild-cat investment scheme, are conspicuous specimens ofthe fool's gold we are finding today.
If you are an inexperienced prospector, look carefully before you leap.
Don't let your gullibility get the better of you. For unlike pure gold, this brand of fool's gold will not stand the acid test. It consists principally of brass and soon tarnishes.

FIRST PLACE GIVEN MONKEYS

Easily the Cleverest of Animals. According to Men Who Have Made a Study of Them.Whether animals can actually reason or not is a much debated question.
Occasionally it is hard to explain the doings of some animals on the ground of mere instinct.For cleverness, even dogs and elephants must give way to monkeys, and in cleverness the chacma monkey of South Africa is given a very high place. It is sometimes used, it appears, instead of a boy to lead the front span of oxen, and one authority even asks us to believe that this creature can count! He tells of one specimen he owned that was certainly very clever. It was a monkey of this species in the Breshan gardens that was fitted with a pair of spectacles and appreciated their use. It wore them with gravity and treated them with respect, and carefully followed them after use.Ordinary bolts are quite useless to imprison orang-outangs and a nail at the head is so ineffectual that keepers always fasten the bolts with a screw. The beasts probably draw the bolts and nail by chance at first, but they quickly learn how to repeat the trick.for Chest Colds

WOMAN, 92, BURNED
PROBABLY FATALYEast Liverpool, March 20.—Mrs.
Narcissa P. Jackson, aged 92, was probably fatally burned yesterday afternoon when her clothing caught fire supposedly from a gas stove.There was no other person in the house when the accident happened.
Despite her advanced years, Mrs.
Jackson lives alone. She has always been vigorous and has done her own housework.When her clothing caught fire Mrs.
Jackson ran to the front door and screamed for help. Her daughter, Mrs. John Scott, who lives just around the corner on Vine st., and Mrs. A.
C. Boyce, another neighbor, heard her screams and ran to her assistance.By the time Mrs. Scott and Mrs.
Boyce reached the Jackson home, the aged woman was ablaze from head to foot. They finally succeeded in smothering the blaze by wrapping Mrs. Jackson in rugs and blankets but not until she had been terribly burned. In attempting to beat out the flames and wrap her mother in blankets and rugs, Mrs. Scott also suffered painful burns on the hands and arms.End the pain of

JIM'S INSPIRATION

By CORONA REMINGTON

Bill Davidson ignored the elevator, darted up the three flights of stairs to his apartment, unlocked the door and threw himself into the nearest chair.

He was facing a terrible situation; for the first time in his life that very evening he had made the discovery that he was in love.

He had thought Vera Godwin was just like other girls until this evening, when the sight of her seemed to intoxicate him. Old Mother Nature kept singing to him: "She's the girl for you. She's your mate, how can you ignore it? Take her, tell her you love her. Marry and be happy." But another voice inside spoke more imperiously still: "Be careful, old man. If you want to get to the top you have neither time nor money for a wife and children."

But although nature spoke more quietly and less dictatorially she had a stronger influence and for one blind moment Bill Davidson had held Vera to him tight and had told her half truthfully that he loved her. Then without a word of apology or explanation and without having proposed, he had fled out of the house and back to his apartment; and here he was sitting in the dark with his head in his hands trying to face the situation.

Certainly he should not marry for ten years yet. He would be only forty then and by that time he ought to be well along toward that office next door to the president, if not actually sitting in it. But there was Vera and he loved her more than he had ever dreamed any man could love and she would never wait ten years and some other man would get her. Madly he clenched his fists and struggled to work it out.

Along toward morning he came to the conclusion that if he were strong enough he could resist his longing for Vera and force ahead toward his goal.

The next morning big Jim Williams, the much envied and adored president, came through Bill's department and stopped at his desk.

"How about having lunch with me today, Davidson?" he said genially. "You know my hobby for keeping personally in touch with my men and lunch time's about my only chance."

"Thank you so much, Mr. Williams. I'd be glad to come, for we all enjoy talking to President Jim."

"Thanks. I appreciate that." He slapped the younger man on the back. "Come to my office at one and we'll go to a quiet little place where we can talk."

As it happened, their quiet little place was pretty well crowded and only a table in the window was left. Williams, always keenly interested in everything, gave the order, then watched the passersby on the street with all the eagerness of a child.

"Say, Davidson," he exclaimed and then, "Look at that shabby little couple taking in the pastry. Newlyweds, I'll bet, and from the country, too. How she clings to him! I'd give anything I had to be in their shoes. They've got the light of heaven on their faces."

"Why do you envy them?" Davidson asked.

"Good Lord! don't you? He's got some one to work for and some one to tell his troubles to and some one to worship him, all in one. Watch how she looks at him. If you were to go out there this minute and offer yourself as a swap—and mind you, you're handsome as a picture and better dressed than she ever saw any one in her whole life—why, she wouldn't exchange her red-faced, rawboned farmer boy for a dozen of you! No sir, she wouldn't. That girl's happy, and he is, too, only he's kind of sheepish about it."

"Well, if you think all that, why didn't you?" Bill broke off embarrassed.

"Why didn't I marry, son?" the president went on evenly. "I did, but I lost my little wife when our boy came, and somehow I never could think of taking another. And, after all, you don't really lose anything you've loved. I struggled harder than ever to be a success after she went away because I knew she'd like it. She was always so interested in the business. And I've tried to be the sort of man she'd have me be, too. I've been lonely, infernally lonely at times, but I'd rather have married her and lost her than to have any other woman I've ever seen and have her as long as I live!"

When Williams looked across the table there were tears in the younger man's eyes.

"Thank you for telling me," Davidson mumbled, putting out his hand. "You've shed a new light on everything. I've been so dreadfully, selfishly blind. And—and may I have the afternoon off? There's something I want to say to a girl I know."

"Sure you may," said Williams heartily, quickly forgetting himself. "And if she'll have you I'll give you a promotion for a wedding present. You've got it in you to make a success—if you get the right woman to inspire you."

"How blind I've been and how undeserving!" said Davidson over and over as he hurried toward Vera's home.

CONSULT PREMIER ON FASCIST PLAN

Italian Ambassador To U. S. Informed Of Efforts To Organize.

New York, March 20.—Prince Ceanani, Italian ambassador to the United States, was consulted on the organization of Fascist groups here, it developed today.

Shortly after the ambassador's arrival to represent Italy, Antonio Carniani, member of the New York Fascist established by agents of Benito Mussolini, Italian premier, met the ambassador in the latter part of December, 1922, at the Italian embassy in Washington and at the Ritz-Carlton hotel in New York.

They discussed the formation of Fascist groups in the United States. Prince Ceanani, according to Carniani, advised that it would be of great advantage to the Italians in America if a strong organization could be assembled in a bond with the mother country.

The Italian ambassador was consulted at a "matter of respect" since the prince is not one of the Fascist himself, Carniani stated.

That the effort to establish Fascism in the United States which are completely obedient to the iron discipline of the Italian Fascist is not recent is disclosed by Mussolini himself in a policy announced before he secured control of the Italian government. That policy has since been put into effect.

In this announcement, made in 1921, but which is now being spread broadcast among the Italians in America, Mussolini declared that within a year his agents would establish Fascism in North Central and South America, the objects of these Fascists being to keep the Italian colonies in foreign lands strictly Italian and devoted to Italian interests.

ARMY AIR SERVICE

fliers, across Mesopotamia, up the Mediterranean coast to Marseilles, Paris and London.

From England to the United States there are two feasible routes, the southern by way of the Azores, and the northern by way of Ireland, Greenland and Canada.

Begin in Summer
Since British airmen have made flights to Mesopotamia, India and even to Australia, and since fliers have crossed the Atlantic, the only part of the route which remains untested is that across the Bering sea and down the coast of China. Owing to the shortness of days in the northern regions in winter, officials have selected the months of July and August as the best time for making this part of the flight.

Before the world flight can be attempted, it will be necessary of course to provide oil, gas and repair stations at fixed intervals along the proposed route and arrangements will have to be made with the governments of the various territories to be traversed for special permission to land where necessary.

Army officers believe the T-2, the re-modified thick wing monoplane in which Lieuts. Kelley and Macready of the air service recently set new world records for distance, is suitable for the flight around the world.

116,080 FORDS ARE
SOLD IN FEBRUARY

Detroit, March 26. — With 116,080 Ford cars sold at retail in February a new record for the shortest month in the year has been established. February sales exceeded those of January by more than 15,000 and marked the eleventh month in which Ford sales have topped the 100,000 line.

This sales record bears out predictions made at the opening of the year that an acute shortage in Ford cars is certain and this shortage is expected to be felt within the next two months with the increased volume of car buying which is always attendant upon the spring months.

Even the high production schedule set at the Ford Motor Company's factory here, which will reach 6,000 cars and trucks a day about April 1, will be unable to meet the apparent demand for Ford products.

Anticipating a great increase in the demand for Ford cars during the present year the factory here laid plans for increasing production to the 6,000 cars a day schedule and since Jan. 1, had been constantly speeding up manufacture to reach this figure. Demand so far has been of such great proportions as to absorb nearly all production and stocks in hands of dealers are at present the lowest they have been in months.

February sales of 116,080 cars were made in the face of unfavorable weather conditions in many sections of the country which tied up freight traffic and prevented many deliveries. This was particularly true throughout the Northwest, the northern tier of states and in New England. In California, too, cold weather during a part of the month had its effect upon car sales.

Yet with even these unfavorable conditions, the February sales topped those of January by 15 per cent and set a new high record for mid-winter selling.

With February the eleventh month in which Ford car sales have gone over the 100,000, the total for this period is close to 1,250,000 cars.

Peak car sales usually are reached during the summer months with drops in the fall and winter. This feature of automobile absorption by the buying public has been completely changed during the last few months through the activities of the Ford dealer organization which has raised the "peak" line to include every month in the year.

Murders are eight times more frequent in the United States than in Canada, a Chicago Judge asserts.

BRITISH DEBATE SOCIALIST THEORY

London, March 20—The first general debate on Socialist principles of government since Premier Andrew Bonar Law took office is due in the house of commons tonight when the resolution of Philip Snowden, Laborite, proposing nationalization of industries, is called up.

Many amendments have been offered since the resolution was introduced last week.

Sir Philip Lloyd-Grae, famous British financier, will lead the opposition to the measure. It is regarded as doubtful if the resolution reaches a vote although the labor members are insisting that the house be put on record.

In the meantime the labor situation in western England is becoming worse and worse. Additional farm workers and miners have joined the workers' strike and the number of idle men is now approaching 50,000. Men employed in the building trades are now threatening to join the walkout.

MAY EXTEND PROBE OF SUGAR COMBINE

Washington, March 20.—Investigation of combinations and speculations in Cuban sugar may be extended to the United States. One of the questions to be considered, it was stated, is "whether or not American citizens can sit on their own soil and conspire in foreign countries. An investigation of the tariff rates on sugar already has been ordered by the U. S. tariff commission.

INFUSION OF NEW BLOOD WILL BEAR FRUIT FOR GIANTS

McGraw Builds Up Strong Team Of Young Men As Substitutes.

San Antonio, Texas, March 20.—Day by day, in every way it becomes apparent that John McGraw has been most fortunate in his selection of young players with which he can and will fortify his team for the future. This year he has gathered around him the most promising bunch of rookies he has ever had in his long career as manager.

If a team is only as strong as its substitutes, the present Giants are better now than ever before. They are splendidly fortified in every position and this infusion of young blood is bound to bear fruit for several years.

Set For Three Years
While the leader of the world's champions has frequently bought players in mid-season to strengthen his team, thereby holding them up to the class needed to give strong battle for pennants, he also looks further ahead than any other manager in his endeavor to improve his chances for the future. For the next three years he will have teams that will be in the fight for the championship from start to finish, always in the race.

Although the club has enjoyed only a comparative few days of training here, the pitchers worked out at Marlin for a week. Weather conditions there were unfavorable, yet Cozy Dolan brought the moundmen to San Antonio in surprisingly good form.

The most promising of the rookie pitchers are Guy Morrison, who is a graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan; Clinton Blume, of Colgate; George Walberg and Earl Webb, from the Portland, Ore., club and Mike Cvergros from the Little Rock, Ark., club. All are big rangy fellows with the exception of Cvergros and they have afforded evidence of ability worthy of consideration although none of them have been attempting to use much stuff on the ball.

The regular box men, with the exception of Jack Scott and Bill Ryan, who were late in reporting, are in good condition, no lame wings having materialized as yet. Fortunately the weather here has been ideal for training.

Pitching Staff In Shape
The pitching staff as a whole appears to be much further advanced in condition than at a corresponding date last spring and the prospect is that at the start of the championship season, April 17, McGraw will be exceedingly well provided with mound artists.

The catchers, Frank Snyder and Alex Gaston, are throwing to bases in mid-season form and Earl Smith, who reported late, is also rounding to nicely.

Travis Jackson, who was with the Little Rock club of the Southern association last year has made a big hit with McGraw with his work around the short field. He is remarkably fast, covers lots of ground and can shoot them across the diamond like a streak. Jackson also packs a punch at the plate.

Fred Maguire, former Holy Cross infielder, is showing much splendid form in fielding. He has a grand pair of hands. Walter McPhee, late of Princeton, is also making good as an infielder.

Jim O'Connell, the $75,000 Pacific coast prize, has come up to expectations as a wallpaper but is still a bit shy on defensive finesse.

Rev. Gibbons Will Succeed Kirby At Leetonia Friday

Leetonia, March 20.—Rev. Richard Gibbons, for the past six years first assistant to Lt. Rev. Msgr. Edward Mears, L.L.D., dean of the priests of Mahoning valley, will become pastor of St. Patrick's church here Friday.

Father Gibbons was born in Cleveland and received his elementary studies in the parochial schools there. He received the theological studies in St. Mary's seminary, Cleveland and was ordained 12 years ago. His first charge was assistant in St. Vincent's parish, Akron, where he distinguished himself, not only in religious work but in organizing young people of his parish into social groups for social, religious and educational development.

For seven months he served as assistant in St. Patrick's church, Youngstown, and was later transferred to St. Columbia's parish, where his leadership in religious affairs and his initiative and executive ability in conducting affairs of the parish were much in evidence.

During his service in St. Columbia's parish he was of inestimable value to Msgr. Mears the present pastor and relieved him of much of the burdensome duties of pastor, which he found necessary to relinquish because of his failing health.

He served as director of the St. Vincent De Paul Conference, which extended help to the poor of all creeds throughout the city. For the past two years he has served as chaplain of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Father Kirby who leaves here after 18 years faithful service, takes with him to Lowellville the affection of the entire village of Leetonia.

Does Your Back Ache? Do You Find It Hard to Get Up in the Morning?

Here's a Way to Gain New Life

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I had been a great sufferer from backache and kidney trouble. My work is pretty hard on the back and I got so bad that I could hardly bend over or straighten myself up to do my work and it was an effort to get up in the morning. I was in such a state that I was willing to try anything, and did try many things. I heard of Dr. Pierce's Anuric (kidney and backache) Tablets at last and tried them. The reason I say last is, 'Anuric' was the last I needed, for two bottles have taken all the pain and kink out of me. I want to say, 'Anuric' has them all beat."—Albert Johns, 1739 Eastern Ave.

Help your weakened kidneys by obtaining this "Anuric" of Dr. Pierce's at your nearest drug store or send 10c for trial pkg. of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., or write for free medical advice.

The regular box men, with the exception of Jack Scott and Bill Ryan, who were late in reporting, are in good condition, no lame wings having materialized as yet. Fortunately the weather here has been ideal for training.

The pitching staff as a whole appears to be much further advanced in condition than at a corresponding date last spring and the prospect is that at the start of the championship season, April 17, McGraw will be exceedingly well provided with mound artists.

The catchers, Frank Snyder and Alex Gaston, are throwing to bases in mid-season form and Earl Smith, who reported late, is also rounding to nicely.

Travis Jackson, who was with the Little Rock club of the Southern association last year has made a big hit with McGraw with his work around the short field. He is remarkably fast, covers lots of ground and can shoot them across the diamond like a streak. Jackson also packs a punch at the plate.

Fred Maguire, former Holy Cross infielder, is showing much splendid form in fielding. He has a grand pair of hands. Walter McPhee, late of Princeton, is also making good as an infielder.

Jim O'Connell, the $75,000 Pacific coast prize, has come up to expectations as a wallpaper but is still a bit shy on defensive finesse.

During his service in St. Columbia's parish he was of inestimable value to Msgr. Mears the present pastor and relieved him of much of the burdensome duties of pastor, which he found necessary to relinquish because of his failing health.

He served as director of the St. Vincent De Paul Conference, which extended help to the poor of all creeds throughout the city. For the past two years he has served as chaplain of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Father Kirby who leaves here after 18 years faithful service, takes with him to Lowellville the affection of the entire village of Leetonia.

CIVIL WAR VETS FEW IN CONGRESS

MEN WHO WERE IN WORLD WAR,
HOWEVER, ARE BEING ELECT-ED IN INCREASING NUMBERS.

THREE ARE IN THE SENATE

Thirty-Three of Them Were Members of the Lower House During Session
Just Closed—Some Notable Friendships Between Former Foes.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington.—In the lower house of the Sixty-seventh congress which passed away on March 4 there were only two members who saw service in the Civil war—H. Z. Osborne of California, Union veteran, and C. M. Stedman of North Carolina, Confederate veteran. Representative Osborne died recently and at a memorial service in the house a eulogy of him was spoken by the one-time opponent in war, Mr. Stedman.

In the senate of the United States today there are two veterans of the war between the states, both of them having seen service in the Union army—Francis Nelson of Minnesota and Claude E. Warren of Wyoming. Veteran Warren wears a Medal of Honor for a gallant deed which was done under circumstances "over and above the call of duty."

It was not so many years ago that virtually half of the membership of each house of congress was composed of veterans of the Civil war. In the North and in the South both, there was a feeling apparently that those who had served well in war would serve well in peace; and then, of course, there was the added incentive of giving the reward of office to men who had been willing to risk their lives for a cause.

World War Veterans Coming In.

Session by session for a good many years the number of veterans of the Civil war in the two houses has been decreasing, until now it has almost reached the vanishing point. Veterans of the World war, however, are coming into congress, 36 of them being members of the congress which has just closed its last session. There are three World war veterans in the senate and 33 in the house. The three senators are David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, Davis Elkins of West Virginia, and Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa.

Some persons have asserted the American people are less likely now than in the years that are past to consider war service as a qualification or as a reason for posts in the civil service. It would seem, however, that the fact that within two years of the war's closing, 36 veterans were elected to congress would show that the belief soldiers will not be preferred, for civil service is not particularly well based. It is the feeling in Washington that as the years go on the number of veterans of the World war holding places in congress will increase until finally in the course of events they must begin to decline until the day of vanishing shall come because of the toll which must be paid to nature.

It is not long since the last Confederate veteran senator dropped from the service and dropped in fact from the scenes of earth. It seems only the other day that three Confederate veterans of both war and peace merit, Daniel of Virginia and Morgan and Pettus of Alabama, were holding their places in the upper house of congress and were doing daily battle for legislation in which they believed. Daniel had been badly wounded in action. Senators Pettus and Morgan went through the war unscathed, but they both saw gallant active service.

Friends of North and South.

Through the years there has been manifest in both house and senate the warmest friendships between northern veterans on the one hand and Confederate veterans on the other. The bond of service seemed to be strong even though the friends served on opposite sides of the conflict. Senator Nelson of Minnesota and Senator Daniel of Virginia, one a Union and the other a Confederate soldier, were the strongest personal friends, although it is doubtful if the two ever voted the same way in any political or legislative contest.

Factional and political lines seemingly do not divide friendship's estates. One of the remarkable senate personal friendships was that existing between Senator Tillman of South Carolina and Senator Chandler of New Hampshire, one time secretary of the navy. Chandler was a typical Yankee and Tillman was of the South. These two men were utterly unlike in most of their ways, but they formed an attachment for each other almost as soon as Tillman arrived in Washington, and their close personal friendship lasted until Tillman died.

In the house of representatives Champ Clark, who was southern born and a Democrat of Democrats, and Gen. Charles Grosvenor of Ohio, a Union soldier, struck up a friendship which was remarkable for its tenacity. On the floor of the house Clark and Grosvenor used to hammer each other verbally in argument until all the spectators in the gallery who didn't know thought they would come to blows. A little later the two would be seen walking out of the house, each with an arm around the other's shoulder.

RAIN-MAKING NOT FEASIBLE, CLAIMS WEATHER BUREAU

Rain-making is a futile undertaking, according to the Weather bureau, United States Department of Agriculture. To produce one inch of rain, fall over an area of an acre, approximates 112 tons of moisture would have to be drawn up into the air and then precipitated. There are 649 acres in a square mile, for which 72,320 tons of moisture would be required. A square mile, however, would be scarcely a dot in the center of any section where drought prevails, as in Arizona or parts of Texas. It would be less than one-thirtieth of the area of the District of Columbia.

Clouds, fog, or rain, are required in nature to elevate moisture above the earth before it can be precipitated. Billions of horsepower are represented in the cloud that spreads over the loose tops; and even if some artificial means were found to cause the aggregation and fall as rain of the infinitesimal drops of which it is made up, calculation shows that only a trifling amount of precipitation would result. There must be some way by which the moisture laden atmosphere can be lifted to a considerably higher altitude, to lower its temperature and thus precipitate a considerable amount of the moisture of the atmosphere. It is quite true that in laboratory experiments a small amount of moisture can be precipitated by the use of special equipment. Meteorologists of the Weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture say that they do not know of any scheme for the artificial production of rain on a scale of practical magnitude, nor for otherwise affecting atmospheric behavior. Widespread drought is due to lack of sufficient moisture in the atmosphere and the absence of other conditions essential to the formation of rain. If there is little moisture to bring down, obviously no device for causing rain artificially has any value.

A Supreme Achievement in Radio Receivers

Radiola Grand

Throughout the entire development of Radiola Grand, its builders have striven toward the ideals which they visualized in this, a supreme achievement in the Radio Art. During months of research and exacting trials, the resources of some of the world's famous radio laboratories were brought into play.

Radiola Grand is unique in that it is a complete radio receiving set, including a self contained loud speaker, and having space for all necessary batteries within the case. One of the principle features of this instrument is the use of low current vacuum tubes, the filaments of which are operated from three ordinary dry cells, thereby eliminating storage batteries together with their charging trouble and risk of injury by spilled acid. Such other distinctions as a powerful amplifier, a highly perfected loud speaker and mechanical devices for the elimination of vibration contribute much to the very successful operation of the complete receiver.

Radiola Grand has quite regularly reproduced in good volume, broadcast programs from stations 1000 miles distant. On a highly constructed antenna, it may be depended upon to receive satisfactorily, signals which can be picked up with any receivers having equal facilities for amplification. Not least among the many improvements of Radiola Grand is what is known as the famous "push-pull" circuit employed in the second stage of amplification. Two vacuum tubes are used in this particular stage, with very pleasing results in the quality and volume of reproduced sound.

Radiola Grand is as simple to operate as is consistent with good quality, selectivity and strength of signal. It will be found very easy to pick up signals from the different broadcasting stations and with a little practice it will be possible to receive weak and distant broadcasting with the careful tuning and adjustment of regeneration necessary to the operation of the loud speaker. By inserting the plug of the telephone receivers in the special jack located on the left hand side of the cabinet, distance reception up to 1500 miles is frequently possible under favorable atmospheric conditions.

With Radiola Grand, and a little practice at its operation, new worlds of entertainment and amusement are your to explore and enjoy at the mere turning of a knob.

WILL INVESTIGATE VETERANS' BUREAU

CONGRESSIONAL INQUIRY IS TO BE MADE INTO CONDUCT, METHODS AND WORK.

RETIRING HEAD WELCOMES IT

Great Majority of Ex-Service Men Desire Regular Army Methods of Discipline Applied to the Office Work—Newly Appointed Director Is a Retired Officer.

Washington.—Alvin M. Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, has just been the guest of the National Press Club post of the Legion, and during an interim in the reception he spoke to members of the post and to other newspaper men present on questions of importance to the veterans' organization.

A congressional inquiry will be made into the conduct of the veterans' bureau and into the methods which have prevailed in the work that has been done. Col. Charles R. Forbes, who recently resigned as director of the veterans' bureau, has rendered an account of his stewardship to the President, and the colonel has expressed himself as welcoming any inquiry into the operations of the office while under his direction.

National Commander Owsley had in his audience when he spoke to the Press Club Legion post not only the recently resigned director of the veterans' bureau, but the man who has been named to succeed him in office, Col. Frank T. Hines, United States army, retired. There were also present several members of both houses of congress who, according to the Legion's viewpoint, either have helped or have hindered legislation for the veterans.

There was an insistence by most of the veterans of the World war that one of their comrades should be made director of the veterans' bureau. This apparently was the first consideration with them, but of course it was coupled with the consideration of ability and a promise of efficiency, a real disciplinary efficiency. There are plenty of men in Washington who are ready to say that if there has been any real trouble in the veterans' bureau either under the administration of Woodrow Wilson or Warren G. Harding, it probably has been due to the lack of what the army knows as hard discipline.

Want Regular Army Methods. One of the somewhat curious developments of the controversy over the conduct of the veterans' bureau is that while the great majority of the ex-service men have shown something much like animosity toward the regular army, their desire largely seems to be today that regular army methods as they can be applied to office work shall be used in the veterans' bureau. There was opposition to the appointment of Colonel Hines, a regular army man, but there was also a great element in the various organizations of veterans who desired that a man accustomed to army ways should be put in charge of things.

Taking it all in all, the ex-service men, almost all of whom, of course, entered the war from civil life, seemed to feel that a regular army officer will be unafraid of the politicians on the one hand and the ex-service men on the other, and will do those things which he thinks are for the highest good of the greatest number of veterans. The newly appointed director is on the retired list of the army. His livelihood does not depend on his pay in the veterans' bureau. If he leaves his post he goes back upon the retired list and receives his regular retired army pay.

Ever since the veterans' bureau was established it has been known that many of the politicians, irrespective of party, have been anxious to secure places in the bureau for those whom they could not secure work in other departments of the government. Politicians of both parties have run foul of the ex-service men time and again, for the veterans have insisted that their comrades be given the places which some of the politicians have demanded should be given to their favored ones. It is rather a hard thing to say, but at times it seemed that the question of the ability of a man to fill a place in the veterans' bureau, no matter of what importance, not always, seemingly, has been of first consideration for preferment.

Politicians' Shock Troops. Today it is fair to say that the belief of a good many service men is that with the regular army man in the job as director of the bureau, he will have the nerve and the courage to withstand the shock troops of the politicians on the one flank and the shock troops of the ex-service men on the other.

A congressional committee is to undertake the work of trying to find out what has been wrong, if anything has been wrong, with the general work of the veterans' bureau. There are some men here who think that if the committee would start its work by learning and making public the names of the politicians who under two administrations, one Democratic and one Republican, have secured places in the bureau for favorites who also were inefficient, a good beginning would be made, a beginning which perhaps might bring the inquiry to a conclusion more quickly than otherwise would be the case.

ENGLISHMAN IN HIGH PLACE

Sir Alexander Cumming Made Chief of Cherokee Indians During the Reign of George II.

Sir Alexander Cumming was known as the "King of the Cherokees." In 1779 he was induced by a dream of his wife's to undertake a voyage to America, and in the next year he found himself among the Cherokee Indians, of whom he was made a chief, and in which capacity he figured at a meeting of the different tribes at Nequisee, among the mountains. He returned to England, accompanied by six Indian chiefs, and appeared before George II at Windsor. He laid his crown at his majesty's feet, the other chiefs also doing homage, and presenting to the king four scalps to show that they were an overmatch for their enemies, and four eagles' tails as emblems of victory.

They all received much attention while in England, and after the departure of the Indians Sir Alexander seems to have fallen out of the notice of the general public.

Old Normal School, Once Court House, Is Sold For $6,900

An interesting chapter of Mahoning county history was given a "finis" Saturday afternoon when the old court house property, later used as a normal school at Canfield, went under the auctioneer's hammer for $6,900. The buyer was W. J. Smith, of Youngstown, acting for the Ultimo Culture Co., of which he is president and general manager.

There were only a few bidders when the property was put up for sale by Auctioneer H. L. Barker. A number of citizens came to the sale out of curiosity and a few old timers with some sense of pathos as they watched the building that had once been the pride of Canfield go for a quite moderate figure.

The building will perhaps be torn down in the near future, Mr. Smith intimated. "I am not at liberty to state for what purpose the property will be used," said the buyer. It is said, however, that the company, florists, will use the property for a greenhouse.

The lot and building formerly used as a jail was sold to M. H. Liddle, president of the Farmers National bank of Canfield for $1,300. Lots nearby went for $400 and $900.

The portable school standing on part of this property was not sold.

Want Better Lights To Nab 'Gas Hawks'

1630n, March 20.—As an argument for the better lighting of the business district of Lisbon, it is freely stated that "gas hawks" have been playing their vocation in Lisbon.

The complaints have been made by several young women. Officers are on the lookout for these men and plans are being made for their arrest on their return to Lisbon.

Kiwanis members state that better lighting in the business district will enable women accosted by these men to obtain license numbers, and a description so that the officers can identify them.

THE BLUE TEAROOM

By JANE GORDON

Barring was mentally and physically tired. Fame is often dearly won. His last book was a great success, but now the physician looking concernedly at the dispirited young man, advised sea air and long walks in the country.

"Leave all work behind," he said, "and take a relaxing, restful holiday. Barring thought this advice over, then—as though in suggestion, came a letter from the agent who had his country property in charge.

Barring's grandfather, dying when Douglas Barring was a lad at school, had bequeathed to his orphaned grandson the old family home in a far seaside village. His grandfather's agent had rented the house from time to time.

"It is possible," Loring, the agent, wrote, "that I might make a sale for you, but I must confess that I think you should understand the situation as it now stands. The old house was going into decay when a young man and his wife rented it. They repaired it at their own expense, as I assured them, from the understanding that you had given me, that the place would not be offered for sale—to others than themselves.

"When war was declared the young man went across. He returned a shell-shocked. His girl-wife had carried on the place as well as she could during his absence by giving meals and taking summer boarders. She was about to give up when the plan of a sort of restaurant came to her, and now the place is doing nicely and the young couple are eager to buy—as soon as they can—which is not yet.

"They surely have made the place over, and their business is paying in that location. Do you wish to give them the chance to buy later, or must I sell your grandfather's home at once?"

Douglas Barring replied to his agent's communication and requested that he be met at the faraway station. After the letter was posted Douglas experienced a pleasant, youthful sort of anticipation—of adventure to come.

A thrill of pride possessed Douglas Barring when the automobile drew up before his grandfather's home. An inviting place, and well kept up, as Loring had said. His coming had also been heralded, for the ex-soldier's wife met him at the white, vine-draped door. She was a shy young woman and left him immediately in the wide blue dining room as she hurried out to prepare him refreshment. Barring gazed about in pleased surprise. The long, low-ceilinged room was a delight to the senses. No interior decorator could have arranged it with more charming effect. The dull blue-tinted walls, the white wainscoting. The rows of old blue plates, blue candlesticks on either side of the wide brick fireplace; on the small tables blue bowls filled with marigolds. And just before him the sea, blue now, and restful too. A motor stopped before the door and a merry party entered. At the farther table they awaited their order of chocolate and muffs. A paying business, no doubt; it was not strange that his tenants wished to remain.

"Mr. Barring?" a soft and pleasing voice asked the question, and the author looked up into the very blue eyes of a pretty young woman. "Your room is ready upstairs, if you would prefer to go there before luncheon. We have fixed your grandfather's former room for you," the young woman added.

She was placing his meal on the table in the now vacated dining room when he came downstairs later.

"This is all very delightful," Barring said. "My physician ordered a long stay in sea air, and I confess I did not know how I was going to endure it. Those places usually bore me. Now," he smiled up at the girl—"now I am all anticipation."

The young woman took a chair opposite his own; frankly her blue eyes met his. "And we are to be allowed to stay?" she asked directly. Her tremulous laugh stopped the words he would have said. "May I tell you our heart story and our need? My brother came home from the war—a wreck in mind and body. His little wife tried to carry on the burden of his support and care. She was falling in the fight when I gave up college and came here to try to help them. I intended to be a teacher. But—" the girl's eyes shone, "I have had a lovely time turning the dingy old dining room of your grandfather into a 'blue tearoom.' And we are making money. Soon, with a helper, Ada, my brother's wife, will be able to carry it on without my assistance. Then they hope to buy the place."

Douglas put forth a hand to clasp in good faith that of the girl before him.

"Your story," he said gently, "has indeed moved me to admiration and sympathy. The old house and the little blue shop that you have made shall belong to you and yours just so long as you desire. My doctor," added Douglas with a smile, "spoke of long healthful walks that I must take by the side of the sea. I wonder—if an advising young college maid might be persuaded to point out to me the beneficial way?"

The little lady of the blue shop arose. "I will be glad to go with you," she said—and so Barring's anticipated happy adventure began.

GOOD ROADS ESSAY CONTEST PREPARED

Washington, March 20.—For the fourth successive year, high school students of the nation are to be given opportunity to win the largest single educational award offered in the United States, according to a statement by the Highway Education Board today.

The award is the H. S. Firestone Four Years University scholarship, providing not only tuition, but room, board, books and special fees for the student writing the best essay in the annual good roads essay contest. The assigned subject of the essays to be written is "The Influence of Highway Transportation Upon the Religious Life of My Community."

Announcement of the contest is being made to superintendents of schools, high school principals, and students as rapidly as possible, and all available literature is being listed and tabulated for the information of the prospective contestants. The board announces its willingness to answer any inquiry students and teachers may desire to make, but it points out that all that is necessary is compliance with the simple rules of the contest and the preparation of a 700 word essay on the subject. Essays should be submitted to the High School principal by May 1.

The contest, known to thousands of students throughout the United States and territorial possessions, as the "annual good roads essay contest" is the most sustained competition of its kind. Inaugurated in 1920, it has provided a college education for three students, one boy and two girls, and its maintenance from year to year is assured by the donor of the scholarship, Harvey S. Firestone, Akron, Ohio.

COMB SAGE TEA IN FADED OR GRAY HAIR

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Reformer Is Our National Peril, Asserts Pastor

Cincinnati, March 20.—"Our national peril is not now the vicious, but the reformers," declared the Rev. John Malick, pastor of the First Unitarian Congregational church, in a sermon featured by bitter attacks upon the elements which, he said, sought by legislative means to impose their moral and intellectual outlook upon all others.

"At adjournment of each session of the legislature," he said, "we feel relieved if a fundamental American liberty has not been cast into the discard. When a crook crosses the state line we know that a bank or a citizen may be robbed, but when the agents of reform come within our borders we can know that a fundamental American liberty is being hunted to its death and all people are being robbed of a precious possession. 'We are building in America a yanny. It is part of a nation-wide movement to legislate for all what each should be free to decide for himself.'"

Much of the Rev. Mr. Malick's denunciation of professional reformers was aimed at house bill 271, pending in the Ohio legislature, to compel all children in grammar grades of public schools to listen daily to reading of selected excerpts from the Bible and to memorize the Ten Commandments.

The bill has been fought by numerous clergymen, chiefly Jewish and Roman Catholic, but including one Protestant Episcopal bishop, the Right Rev. Theodore Irving Reese of Columbus, bishop coadjutor of the diocese of southern Ohio.

Another target for onslaught by the Rev. Mr. Malick was the crusade of William Jennings Bryan and others against teaching of the Darwinian theory of evolution and survival of the fittest in the scientific courses of study at state-supported colleges.

Jimmy Dime, Fight Promoter, Injured

Jimmy Dime, nationally known prize fight promoter, was run down and perhaps fatally injured in New Castle late Sunday when two automobiles nearly crashed in Croton ave.

Dime was afoot and was hit when the cars swerved to avoid collision. One driver escaped. The other is I. C. Gachendack, Dewey ave. New Castle. Dime sustained two broken ribs, bruised head, fractured hip and internal injuries. He is just recovering from a long illness.

Dime is known to every fight follower in the country, his New Castle stable having produced George Chip, former middleweight champion; Tony Ross, white hope contender; Jimmy Dunn, discoverer of Johnny Kilbane and Tom McMahon, who once got the decision over Jess Willard in Youngstown.

Rickard Would Match McTigue And Tunney

New York, March 20.—Tex Rickard today declared that he intended to cable an offer to Mike McTigue, the new light-heavyweight champion of the world, to meet Gene Tunney, the American champion, in a bout to a decision during the impending outdoor season.

The claim that Battling Siki was overweight and therefore did not lose his title is laughed at here in view of the fact that McTigue, a middleweight, could not have exceeded the light-heavyweight limit.

OUT-O'-LUCK

By DOROTHY PIPER

Jimmie Dutton was one of those fellows who run out of luck on the very day of their birth. If any kid got caught and chastised for going in swimming in April it was Jimmie.

Jimmie was crazy about Nellie Read, and when he was twenty-three he asked her to marry him. Jimmie's humble salary would not permit him to support two homes, and when he told his bride-to-be that she would have to share his mother's abode that little lady created such a scene that Jimmie was forced to postpone their marriage indefinitely, or, at least, until he could establish himself in a more profitable business.

Nellie refused to wait, and when she returned Jimmie's unpretentious little diamond—the diamond that was not yet paid for—it was the last straw. After that Jimmie did his work in listless silence, and every evening after he had made his mother comfortable for the night he would whistle to Pal, his dog, and the two would go down to the sea beyond his home. There they would romp and swim in peaceful solitude.

The boy suffered acutely when Nellie broke their engagement, but his suffering then was nothing compared to the sorrow caused by his mother's death shortly after. He missed lifting her in and out of bed, he missed combing her hair with his clumsy, willing fingers, and how he yearned for the soft, "That you, Jimmie?" when he opened the door!

Jimmie resigned his position at the drug store because there was always a trace of a tear in his eye and a conspicuous sob in his throat that made him ashamed to meet his patrons. He still sought the sea at the end of the day, but, instead of lulling his troubled spirit, it seemed to be mocking him in his misery and to be beckoning him on to eternal solace in its cold, slimy depths.

"Why not?" thought Jimmie. Fate had been exceedingly cruel to him, had offered him happiness only to snatch it away. Why pretend to get any joy out of living, why continue this lonesome farce called life? There was no one left to care, so Jimmie planned—

He arose early next morning and was pleased to find that he had not weakened in his purpose. He bathed and dressed immaculately, then went to his mother's well-stocked medicine closet and pocketed a bottle marked "poison." Pal followed him about, seeming to wonder, and Jimmie kissed him between the eyes as he tied a note to his collar. The note read: "Won't someone please adopt Pal? I know what loneliness is, and wouldn't wish it for a dog."

Jimmie was all unmindful of the beauties surrounding him. He went swiftly and directly to the cliff, and without hesitation uncorked the bottle. He was about to place it to his lips when a girl in a dilapidated motor boat arrested his attention. She had evidently lost control of it, and the heavy surf was driving her toward the rocks. Her faint cries for help were barely audible. Forgetting his own trouble, Jimmie dived the water with a perfect dive and went to the girl with powerful, overarm strokes.

The girl had swooned when Jimmie reached her, but with considerable difficulty he managed to drag her from the boat and to tow her to the shore, where he was confronted by a strangely garbed group of people. One man, wearing puttees and a megaphone with one hand and tore his hair with the other, "Great guns!" he bellowed at Jimmie, "you've gummed up the whole scene!"

"Gummed up nothing," interrupted another man, "this gentleman has saved your star's life! Why, look at her! She's out—head split open. Tell one of the boys to call a doctor. Some craft that captain let us take—busted mudder!"

The man held out a friendly hand and congratulated Jimmie. "Great work, my boy," he exclaimed. "Prettiest swimming I've seen for some time. Say, what's your name and what's your form of employment? I need a man like you for some South Sea Island stuff I expect to shoot next week. If you photograph as well as you swim, I'd like to take you on."

Jimmie Dutton did photograph well, and proved to be one of the celebrities that "grow" over night. The salary he received astounded him, and the first thing he did was to erect a magnificent mausoleum over his mother's grave. Old Pal escaped adoption, and rides on the front seat of an expensive car with his master—that is, he rides on the front seat when Polly Graham, whose life Jimmie saved, does not; then Pal is relegated to the tonneau.

One night, after a strenuous day on location, the two sat together in the twilight.

"Jimmie," Polly whispered, "why were you seeking the great unknown that day on the cliff? Didn't you know that there is never one door closed without another first being opened?"

"I do now, dear," he smiled. "The gates of Paradise have been opened for me."

And while Jimmie makes love to Polly in real life and in real life, he sits in a darkened theatre and curtsies to his friends. "Why, I knew Jimmie Dutton when he didn't have a single sister to his back!"

How It Serves the Man of Moderate Means

The Security Building and Loan Association has two great purposes: First, to gather up the savings of the community. Upon these it pays interest at the rate of 4% per annum. To the office, weekly or monthly, come people of moderate means to make their deposits and build up a cash reserve against the hour of opportunity or the day of need.

Second, to make First Mortgage Loans on Real estate. These loans are made for from 60 to 66 2/3 per cent of the valuation of the property, and are generally for the construction of homes. Only reasonable charges are made on such loans, and loans are paid back in small monthly installments. No other institution devotes its energies exclusively to these two purposes as does this Association.

CODY MEMORIAL MUCH CRITICIZED

EASTERNERS SAY THAT BUFFALO BILL'S HORSE IS IN AN UN-NATURAL POSITION.

PLAINSMEN YET TO BE HEARD

General Miles Declines to Express an Opinion, but Pays Tribute to His Scout in Many Western Indian Campaigns.

Washington.—Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, United States army, retired, who saw long years of Indian fighting, has just paid a tribute to the memory of Buffalo Bill, who through many campaigns in the West was his scout.

General Miles, however, has declined to express any opinion as to the beauty and effectiveness of the memorial statue of Buffalo Bill, which will be erected near Cody, Wyo. There has been a good deal of rather sharp comment on the work of the sculptor, criticism being particularly directed at the horse upon which the scout is mounted. The critics say the animal is in an unnatural position.

Washington is rather content to wait until plainsmen definitely have passed on the horse before accepting at their face value opinions which have been passed by eastern critics. Everybody in Washington remembers the row that was raised in the country over the eagle which appeared on one of the gold coins of the United States some years ago. The bird was declared to be unnatural and to be wearing "pantaloons." Ornithologists quickly came to the rescue of the eagle and its designer, saying that a full-fledged American eagle wears pantaloons of feathers, a fact which did not seem to be known to the critics. The position of the eagle generally was declared grotesque, yet ornithologists said it was perfect. So possibly it may be with Colonel Cody's horse.

Their Last Campaign Together.

The writer of this went through the last Indian campaign in which Buffalo Bill participated. It was the campaign against the Sioux in southwestern Dakota in December, 1890, and January, 1891, in course of which were fought the battles of Wounded Knee and the Mission and several skirmishes. General Miles was in command in the field, having left his headquarters in Chicago to take command of the troops. He wired Buffalo Bill, asking him to proceed to the front with him. They were together in that Indian campaign for something like five weeks. Then they parted, and their last plains adventure as companions was over.

Somewhere in the United States probably somebody can be found who still possesses one of the striking pictures which was used to advertise the Wild West show. This poster, or rather a picture intended for a shop window display, represented General Miles and Buffalo Bill on horseback, on a high point of land from which they could overlook the hostile Sioux camp. It was a most striking picture. The writer of this was present when a photographer took the picture. Neither the general nor his scout knew that the picture-taker was at work. Both Miles and Cody were magnificent specimens of manhood, and that day they were mounted on fine, rangy, western horses. If the sculptor who modeled the horse and rider memorial to Buffalo Bill had been possessed of one of these old-time show pictures there probably would be no criticism today concerning the pose of the horse.

Sioux Persuaded to Surrender.

During that Sioux campaign General Miles established his headquarters at Pine Ridge Indian agency. He was in constant consultation with Cody. The battle of Wounded Knee had been fought and 275 Indians had been killed, while the loss of the Seventh cavalry, which engaged the red men on that day, amounted to 30 men killed and 70 men wounded. It was Miles' desire to induce the Indians who were still on the warpath to come into the agency and to surrender without participating in another fight. He not only wanted to save the troops, but he wanted to save the Indians.

It is said it was at Buffalo Bill's suggestion that General Miles sent the aged Sioux chieftain Red Cloud into the hostile Sioux camp in order to talk reason to the warriors. Red Cloud at that time was eighty years old, or at any rate he looked it. He made his way to the camp of the hostiles; whether or not it was the result of his mission that the Sioux later surrendered nobody can say, but surrender they did. There were 2,500 of them to come over the prairie ridges to camp in the valley skirting the bluff.

In Denver there is still living an army officer who was with Miles through all his campaigns, and was a close companion of Colonel Cody in the days of plainsman warfare. Maj. Gen. Frank D. Baldwin, United States army, retired, it is almost certain will feel the impulse to travel to Cody to look upon the memorial of his old comrade in arms in the Indian campaigns of the past.

The Swedish cantons hold their elections in the open air.

STOCK PROMOTERS DEALS REVEALED

Scheme To Make Money Out Of Promotion Alone, Says Ohio Chief.

Columbus, March 20.—"It is astounding, in going through the files of the blue sky department, to find how many companies in recent years have been organized by promoters and promoters—the promoters and brokers controlling the corporation, and also acting as brokers in selling the stock—the sole purpose seeming to be to make money out of the promotion of the company and not out of the business itself," declared Director of Commerce Cyrus Locher today.

Director Locher's declaration is contained in a communication addressed to Gov. Donahue in which he stated that from February 1 to March 15, Commissioner of Securities Norman E. Eck revoked and stopped the sale of stock in 53 corporations and refused to grant certificates of compliance to eleven corporations.

The par value of the stock of these 70 corporations amount to $91,469,800, Director Locher said. These companies, also have been certificated to dispose of 4,074,742 shares of stock of no par value, it was stated. This non par stock was valued at not less than $9,000,000 making the grand total of stock affected by the revocations and rejections of new applications in excess of $100,000,000.

Undertaker Gets His First.

Under Kansas law, in the final settlement of a case in probate court, if there is not enough money to go around the undertaker is the only one who is paid in full. The doctor, the printer and even the judge himself must probate the remainder. Everybody except the undertaker must lose some or all of his bill. The dead must be buried.—Cotter's Weekly.

From the cab of a locomotive on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad to a seat in congress is the record of John C. Schafer of Milwaukee, who has arrived in Washington to take his seat in the next congress. Schafer will be the youngest member of the house, being only 29 and unmarried. The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made Here's an easy way to save $2. and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.
